$10,000 SUIT AGAINST TOWN TROLLEY ROAD

Gettysburg Railway Company Defendant in Suit for Big Sum Following Trolley Accident in August. Nicholas Berkheiser, One of the Victims, Brings Suit for Damages.

Nicholas Berkheiser, one of the victims of the trolley accident near Devil's Den on August 15, has entered suit through his attorney W. C. Sheely Esq., against the Gettysburg Railway Company to recover $10,000 damages.

In the plaintiff's statement charging negligence he says that by reason of the collision "due to the negligence and carelessness of the defendant and the total disregard of its duty to safely carry the plaintiff for hire, the plaintiff was suddenly and violently thrown from said car by reason whereof the plaintiff has been injured in his head, body and nerves and has suffered great pain and distress, and has been prevented and will in the future be prevented from attending to and transacting his lawful business and affairs and has been compelled to lay out and expend large sums of money for medicine and medical attendance and has been otherwise greatly injured and damaged to the plaintiff's damage $10,000."

The accident in which six persons were hurt, occurred on the sharp curve between Devil's Den and the Plum Run bridge. A summer car was coming towards town and the winter car was going out to Round Top when both met at a lively clip on the curve. Berkheiser, who was standing on the front platform of the summer car was thrown some distance against a rock and rendered instantly unconscious.

The accident occurred at what has always been known as the most dangerous place on the road. The winter car was following another car at a distance of about 1,000 feet and the car ahead passed the car coming from Round Top at the Devil's Den siding. Believing the block to be clear to the Wheat Field Motorman Shields started his car toward town.

Realizing the danger of the sharp curve at the Plum Run bridge the trolley officials this year had a string of white lights placed on alternate poles around the curve, with the switch to throw on the lights a short distance on the Wheatfield side of the dangerous place. The instructions given the motorman bound for Round Top were always to turn on these lights before starting around the curve. It is alleged that these lights were not burning as Motorman Shields brought his car round the curve and, thinking the way was clear, was going at a rapid pace when the closed car suddenly loomed into view, also going at good speed to make the curve and grade.

Mr. Berkheiser remained in a very critical condition for several days following the accident and several times it was feared that he would not recover as it was a long time before he entirely regained consciousness. He is now getting along well though he is said to have no use of the right side of his body. The others injured recovered in a few days after the accident.

WILL MEET HERE ON OCTOBER 14

Commission Containing Members from almost Every State in the Union to Meet here to Arrange for 1913.

A conference of three representatives of the United States and the various states and territories appointed to arrange for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg will be held in the capitol building at Harrisburg October 13 and on the battlefield the following day for the purpose of planning for the golden jubilee celebration.

Every state in the Union and each of the island possessions has signified its intention of being represented in the celebration except Delaware, Kansas, Louisiana and Texas, whose governors have not yet responded to the invitation of the state of Pennsylvania to participate. North Carolina and Georgia were the first to accept the invitation.

The commonwealth of Pennsylvania has appropriated $5,000 for the payment of the expenses of the commission and the expenses of those attending the conference will be paid while they are in session with the commission at Harrisburg and Gettysburg.

General Louis Wagner, of the Third National bank, Philadelphia, is chairman, and Captain Richard Boyle, Philadelphia, is secretary of the commission. The members of the commission are Louis Wagner, brevet brigadier general, United States volunteers; William D. Dixon, brevet brigadier general, United States volunteers; E. Bruce Ricketts, major and brevet colonel, First Pennsylvania volunteers; E. Dale Benson, brevet major, United States volunteers; J. Richard Boyle, captain and assistant quartermaster, United States volunteers; William Penn Lloyd, adjutant, First Pennsylvania cavalry; Alexander McDowell, sergeant, One Hundred and Twenty First Pennsylvania infantry; Irvin K. Campbell, corporal, Ninth Pennsylvania volunteers; Lewis T. Brown, private, One Hundred and Second Pennsylvania volunteers.

In accord with an act of congress a committee of three United States senators and three representatives were appointed by the presiding officer to cooperate with the commission and report to congress to enable Uncle Sam to join in making the celebration a success. The committee is as follows: Senate—Hon. George T. Oliver, Hon. Weldon B. Heyburn and Hon. Isidor Rayner; House—Hon. James A. Tawney, Daniel F. Lafean and Hon. John Lamb. Mr. Oliver is chairman of the committee.

The Grand Army of the Republic at its encampment at Atlantic City decided to give whatever aid it could to make the celebration a success and it is probable that the 1913 national encampment will be held here.

BIGLERVILLE

TROLLEY RUMORS ARE NUMEROUS

Three Paper Lines Reported again. Line from McSherrystown here Looks Like Sure Thing for Next Summer. Other Talk.

The annual crop of trolley yarns is being spun in Gettysburg and nearby towns and again indications are to the effect that the town will soon be covered with a network of lines from other towns—on paper.

From Frederick comes the news that the Washington, Frederick and Gettysburg road is going to be pushed through to this place with all haste. The road in Frederick is being electrified at the present time and the promoters are said to be hurrying along at a great rate with the idea of completing to this town within the next year or two. The road is now in operation as a steam line to Thurmont.

Says Chambersburg Public Opinion: Next season we hope to mingle at Caledonia with Gettysburgians who troleyed there.

The York Springs correspondent of the Harrisburg Telegraph says: "Prospects for a trolley line to this place were revived a few days ago by the visit of several Philadelphia capitalists, who are planning to build a road from Harrisburg to Gettysburg via this town."

But while these vague rumors are afloat about these other three roads there comes a ray of real hope that the road from McSherrystown here will be in actual operation during the early part of next summer. It has been stated by a representative of the company to the Town Council that it is confidently expected that the road will be extended from Conewago Chapel here so as to be ready for next summer's trade and it is generally believed that this road will soon be a reality. This would give Gettysburg good trolley connection with Hanover, Littlestown and York while the New Oxford branch will follow the road forking at Conewago Chapel, the one line coming here and the other going to New Oxford.

TWO ACCIDENTS

On Friday Frank Knox, an employee of the Reaser Furniture Company, had his thumb caught in a saw while he was operating, the tip of the member being entirely severed. Dr. Diehl rendered what attention was necessary.

Albert Snyder, who resides with his father on the Pitzer farm near town, was kicked in the face by a horse on Friday sustaining a badly cut nose and forehead. The wound on the nose required six stitches to close while that on the forehead was caused by the calk of the horse's shoe and is very ugly. The horse had kicked at a mule but missed his mark the foot going past the animal and striking Mr. Snyder. He is doing nicely under the care of Dr. Diehl.

SINGING COLLEGE BOYS TO PARADE

With Patriotic Songs Gettysburg College Students Bearing Colors of the Institution will Form Unique Part of Tuesday's Ceremonies.

Singing "Hail Columbia" and bearing aloft the colors of the institution the student body from Gettysburg College will parade to the scene of Tuesday's dedication exercises where they will take part in the ceremonies, the chorus of one hundred voices rendering the national hymn "Angel of Peace."

The parade of the students was arranged for on Friday evening at a mass meeting of the entire body held in Brum Chapel and presided over by President Granville. Mr. Emphield was appointed chief marshal of the student parade which will form at the chapel at noon on Tuesday. Every one is expected to wear the college colors and to carry a pennant. They will march to Cemetery Hill and then parade to the Pennsylvania monument to the stirring strains of Hail Columbia.

At the monument the big chorus will be given a place on the stand and will have a number on the program as above indicated. The college boys are being trained for the event by Prof. Harold Lewars and are holding rehearsals.

BUCHANAN VALLEY

Buchanan Valley, Sept. 24—Bishop Shanahan, of Harrisburg, confirmed a class of sixty one children and adults in St. Ignatius church in Buchanan Valley on Sunday, September 18. The day was a beautiful one and the congregation which turned out, with some visitors, filled the church. The altars were beautifully decorated with dahlias, asters and ferns. The girls were tastefully dressed in white, with veils and wreaths and presented a pretty appearance. Two men, almost octogenarians, were among the number confirmed, John Hall, Sr., and Joseph Shemmaker. The choir sang "Veni Creator" and "How Pure." Miss Virginia Irvin was organist. Miss Myra Dock, State Forestry Commissioner and sister, Miss Laura, Mrs. Sollenberger and daughter, came in from their summer cottages along the Chambersburg pike, to attend the administration of the sacrament of confirmation on Sunday last.

BLACK BEAUTY

Horses have been able to fascinate human beings, so that people often become as much attached to them as to their children. A boy sometimes falls so deeply in love with his horse, that he and his dumb companion become inseparable. This is exemplified in the play, "Black Beauty" where a boy becomes so fond of a horse, that he leaves home because his father tried to make him abuse the horse. This striking example of power to love as animal is most realistically depicted in "Black Beauty" the dramatization of Anna Sewell's story of the same name. Mr. Twomey, the dramatist, has preserved the delightful atmosphere of the book, which rises from the presumption that horses have minds and souls of their own, and should be treated with consideration.

"Black Beauty" is the central figure of the play just as in the book and shares honors with hero and heroine in the interpretation of the plot. This novel play will be seen at Walter's Theatre on Thursday, September 29.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored. My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

BALTIMORE SLIPS DOWN

Loses Place as Sixth City in Union; Cleveland, O., Succeeds It.

Washington, Sept. 24.—Baltimore, which was the sixth city in the United States in point of population in 1900, has lost her position in the country's great cities, according to census statistics, and now becomes seventh city, having in the last ten years been outstripped by Cleveland, which takes sixth place.

Baltimore's population is now 558,485, as compared with Cleveland's 569,663. The Maryland city grew 9.7 per cent, or in numbers 49,528, during the past ten years, having had 508,957 in 1900. Cleveland, which had a population of 381,768 in 1900, grew 46.9 per cent in the decade just ended.

The population of Savannah, Ga., is 65,064, an increase of 10,820, or 19.9 per cent, as compared with 54,244 in 1900.

RAILROAD GRAFT OVER $2,000,000

Startling Revelations Brought Out in Court.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Revelations in court here showed that the Illinois Central was defrauded out of more than $2,000,000 and possibly $3,000,000 during the graft regime, instead of $1,500,000, the original estimate of the losses.

Counsel for the road called expert witnesses to compare original bills with those padded by "small fry" under orders from the grafters and paid by the Illinois Central.

Expert accountants working in co-operation with Illinois Central clerks, bookkeepers and car inspectors, have uncovered new frauds daily, according to the state, that will force the losses to a higher figure than the official first suspected.

"Grafting has been discovered where none was believed to have been possible," said Walter L. Fisher, counsel for the Illinois Central. "The $1,500,000 estimate was obtained by a hurried summary of the frauds through overcharges and the like, and it was a conservative estimate. The total amount of the frauds, however, will be greater than we at first supposed by $2,000,000 or more."

THEODORE F. CLARK DEAD

Auditor General of Delaware Dies Suddenly.

Dover, Del., Sept. 24.—Theodore F. Clark, auditor general of Delaware and just renominated by the Republican state convention, died suddenly at Delaware City of a complication of diseases. Woman Killed in a Stampede on Car.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 24.—Mrs. A. S. J. Davis was killed, another woman was probably fatally injured and a dozen other passengers more or less hurt in a stampede on the Appalachian exposition line when a fuse on a trolley car burned out. Mrs. Davis, being unable to force her way through the crowd, jumped from a window of the car.

In view of the quite general scarcity of wheat for extra amount of corn fodder should be cut to make good the shortage. It goes without saying that the silo is the ideal means of storage for the corn plant, but where provision has not been made for this the next best thing is to cut the corn when the husks have begun to turn yellow and the kernels are well dented and put them in large water tight shocks, double duff. ROOSEVELT IS IN COMMAND

New York Progressives Will Control Convention.

MAY ELIMINATE WOODRUFF

It is Believed Cornelius V. Collins, Roosevelt's Right Hand Man, Will Be Elected State Chairman.

New York, Sept. 24.—The advent of the contributing editor into his office brought with it dozens of politicians and curious folk who wanted to find out from Mr. Roosevelt himself just how things stand.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he thinks he is reasonably safe in predicting that the progressives will have an even greater majority of delegates than he announced at Sagamore Hill on Thursday. It looked to close observers as though it was all over but the counting.

Practically all of Mr. Roosevelt's scouts reported progress in the fight to him. Mr. Griscom was particularly jubilant. He told the colonel and the newspaper men that the returns from upstate indicate that the progressives are going to clean up the convention.

Among the various discussions that took place in the contributing editor's office was one concerning the chairmanship of the Republican state committee. Mr. Roosevelt would not comment upon it, but the county chairman predicted the fall of Timothy L. Woodruff and announced that he himself wouldn't be a candidate for the job. He doesn't want it in the least.

C. V. Collins May Be State Chairman.

Political sharps in town were interested in the report that Cornelius V. Collins, who is to be Roosevelt's right hand man at Saratoga, had been mentioned as a possible successor to Woodruff. The colonel placed a great deal of confidence in Mr. Collins, and while he doesn't say so, it is pretty safe to speculate that Collins will have his support for the state chairmanship in case he cares to run.

Mr. Griscom made several trips over to the Outlook office to see the contributing editor and to tell him the latest news from the front. On one of these trips he was asked whether he would have anything to do with the dethronement of Woodruff.

Neither Mr. Roosevelt nor his political callers had any more news to offer regarding the selection of a candidate. John Schleicher and Congressman Cocks talked over the platform with the colonel in a general way. They discussed the various planks that will be put in to it, but didn't go into details, because Mr. Roosevelt prefers to wait until he reaches Saratoga and confers with more upstate men before he consents to a final draft. There will probably be declarations for direct primaries, an endorsement of the administration and a slight mention of the tariff.

Mixed Crowd Sees Colonel.

It was something of a mixed crowd that trooped in to see Mr. Roosevelt. George W. Dunn, former chairman of the Republican state committee, put in about half an hour with the colonel and went away without ever giving the slightest hint of what transpired. Herbert Parsons, Otto T. Bannard, Fred Greiner, of Buffalo and leader of Erie county; William H. Daniels, state committee man from Buffalo; States Excise Commissioner Maynard A. Clement and Paul Morton dropped in for shots.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the visit of Mr. Morton didn't have any bearing upon funds. He was angry at the story that had been circulated to that effect. He said that Mr. Morton simply came to say howdy and to express his satisfaction upon hearing that the progressives were ahead in the fight. That was the case of a good many others who visited the sanctum.

For various reasons the colonel has decided not to go to Saratoga tomorrow, as he had expected to do. He has switched his plans about so that he is now due to leave New York on Monday morning and to arrive at the battleground in the afternoon.

KERMIT ROOSEVELT HOME

Denies That Trip Abroad Was to See Vanderbilt's Stepdaughter.

New York, Sept. 24.—Kermit Roosevelt was a returning passenger on the transatlantic liner Lusitania. His departure for Europe shortly after his return from Africa excited some surprise and many conjectures as to the time, but he said nothing to point the way for any of them. He said: "I am going back to Harvard, but first I shall run down to Oyster Bay."

Asked about the reports that have connected his name with that of Miss Rutherford, a stepdaughter of W. K. Vanderbilt, he answered:

"Oh, those reports are not true. I'm sure I don't know why they should have been spread as they have. Do I know Miss Rutherford? Well, I hardly know her."

with greater relish than bright, well cured corn fodder. The slovenly way in which it has been handled in many sections in the past has constituted a mighty big leak in the farm management. It is high time the hole responsible for it was being plugged up, and no time would be more appropriate than this present fall, when hay of all kinds is scarce and high priced.

President Will Attend at Least One Game in Philadelphia.

Washington, Sept. 24.—According to information received here the president will attend at least one of the championship base ball games to be played in Philadelphia, unless the pressure of public business should preclude his acceptance of the invitation to be a spectator.

It is stated that he has tentatively accepted the invitation of "Garry" Herman, president of the national commission, the only condition imposed being that some public business does not arise to interfere.

IS BROKEN EGG AN EGG OR ALBUMEN?

New Tariff Court Must Settle the Question.

Washington, Sept. 24.—Is a broken egg an egg or is it albumen? That is the question that the new court of customs appeals will have to settle next week, and it is believed that some profound discussion will ensue.

Under the Payne-Aldrich tariff act eggs pay a fair rate of duty, while albumen doesn't. H. Horsfield, an importer, who gets some of his eggs from China, found that a shipment that recently came across had been reduced to shells and yolks. The appraisers wanted him to pay duty on eggs and he objected, claiming that he ought to pay only on albumen. The court will have to decide when an egg is not an egg and when it is albumen.

DEATH RATE 15 PER 1000

United States Census Bureau Gives Figures For 1909.

Washington, Sept. 24.—The death rate in the United States in 1909 was fifteen in each 1000, according to a bulletin about to be issued by the census bureau.

And this is the lowest average ever recorded for this country. The figures cover only the cities and states having laws requiring the registration of deaths. These represent an estimated total population of 58,776,893, or 55.3 per cent of the estimated total for the entire country.

Drinks Himself to Death.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 24.—Andrew Schostch, forty-three years old, of Whiting, won a wager that he could drink a quart of whiskey and four cans of beer, but did not live to tell the story. He was found dead in bed. He had a wife and daughter. His friends took up a collection to defray the expenses of his funeral. The bet was made with George Duasch in a Whiting saloon. No arrests have been made.

Meet After 40 Years.

Chester, Pa., Sept. 24.—William Weeks, of Cleveland, O., called upon his sister, Mrs. Edwin Grubb here. It is the first time the two have met in forty years. Weeks, a veteran of the Civil War, has been in attendance at the G. A. R. encampment in Atlantic City.

Not induce a too extensive sowing of wheat for next year. Over much of the north half of the corn belt unusually dry and favorable conditions have prevailed this season—conditions that might not be duplicated again in a dozen years. The putting in of a reasonable acreage would seem to be wise. It would mean satisfactory returns under favorable conditions and, as a loss that would not be overwhelming if the conditions should not prove favorable.

In the transference of real estate the question frequently arises whether buyer or seller is liable for taxes falling due on or about the time of the transfer. Taxes due and payable prior to time of sale constitute an incumbrance on the property and must be paid before clear title can be given. Taxes collectible after sale must be paid by the purchaser unless there is specific agreement to the contrary, as the land is always liable for the taxes, and the one who holds title is therefore accountable.

His One Mistake

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Do you wish to see any one here?"

"Savin' yer pristin', O! come to get a squint at the ex-prisidint."

"Why do you wish to see the ex-president?"

"Because Ivery one wants to see 'im, to be sure—because he's the greatest man on alrth."

"Why is he great?"

"Isn't he the frind of the workin'-man, besides countin' among his acquaintances the crowned heads of Urup?"

A sturdy gentleman in glasses smiled. "Pat," he said, "you are right in placin' the ex-president's friendship for the workin'-man ahead of his acquaintance with the crowned heads. Come with me. I'll show you around the ex-president's place, and perhaps you may get a sight of him."

Pat accepted the invitation, and the two strolled about the grounds.

"O!m wonderin'," said Pat, "where he kapes the wild animals he brought from Africa."

"He didn't bring any wild animals alive from Africa. He brought their skins. They are to be stuffed for different museums. But tell me more about why you admire him."

"Well, O!m thinkin'," Pat replied, scratching his head, "that—that, as I told ye, he's the frind of the workin'-man, and O!m think he because he don't moind tellin' 'im forness he don't think of 'em. But he made wan mistake in talkin' to the Britishers."

"What's that?"

"He told 'em to get out o' Egypt. It would 'a' been all right if he'd made it O!rland."

The gentleman smiled.

"What's the vally o' them Egyptian naggers anyway? And O!m hearin' their country's nothin' but sand and hot enough to roast eggs in, savin' the spalpeens haven't got the eggs. But O!rland! The beautiful land that it is, and the foine population of eilgant men and women. And them havin' the feet o' England on their necks. If the ex-president had said, 'Ailther govern O!rland roight or git out,' it 'ud 'a' been loike sayin' 'git out o' O!rland.' 'Enze an En'lishman can't govern any one but naggers."

"You've a good head on you, Pat," said the gentleman. "What other fault have you to find with the ex-president?"

"Well, sor, I was lookin' while he was in the White House for 'em to take off the duty on tay. Tay's a foine drink, and the only people that gits it free are the Chaney naggers."

"But the president doesn't put the duty on tay; congress does that, and the president has no power to take it off."

Pat thought a moment, then said:

"Thin what's the use o' makin' such a fuss at ele-tin' 'em?"

"Tell me some more faults of the ex-president."

"Well, sor, O!m thinkin' he wasn't born in the roight country."

"What country should he have been born in?"

"O!rland. O!m niver think of 'im but O! see in me moind a beautiful pictur' of 'im at an O!rish fair, brandishin' a shillalah over his head, jumpin' up and crackin' his heels together, swearin' in his kin whip the biggest man in the crowd. He's mighty—what dy' call it—stren-us—that's the word, stren-us."

"Another way I loike to pictur' 'im is stirrin' up all them kings, tellin' the spalpeens how to govern their people just loike an American president 'ud do it. O! can see 'im if he had the power jumpin' around among 'em, knockin' off their crowns and givin' the poor devils they've oppressed a chance to live in their palaces awhile."

The gentleman led the way to the house on the top of the hill and motioned Pat to go in. "I'll introduce you to the ex-president," he said.

But Pat demurred.

"It isn't for the loikes of me in these dirty clothes to go into the house of the great man. Besides, I don't need an introduction."

"You don't?"

"No; I've been talkin' to 'im."

"How did you know me?"

"By the windy glass over yer ois and yer beautiful white teeth I seen in the newspaper picturs."

"Good for you! You Irish are a clever race!"

"Not so clever as you Amerikyins."

"How do you make that out?"

"Well, sor, when I seen y' walkin' about here, the cock o' the walk, I had enough pictur's of ye in me moind to cover the ceilin' of a church. It was no credit to me to know ye. But didn't ye call me by me name without iver havin' seen even a photograph of me? Ye called me Pat at onct. Now, O! wonder, sor, if ye kin guess me ole woman's name."

"Bridget."

"Roight ye are! One man as smart as yees should be elected prisident for loife."

"Tell me, Pat, did you come in here from curiosity, or had you a purpose?"

"A purpose is it? An' yer askin' me me purpose? Had ye a purpose when ye was prisident in not rememberin' the office saykers?"

"I couldn't remember them all, Pat."

"Well, sor, I had a purpose in comin' in here. It was to tell ye me mad mistake in tellin' 'em to git out o' Egypt instead of O!rland."

Pat had another inferior purpose; he wanted something to buy "tay" with, and he got it.

More Hair for Men, Women, Children

People's Drug Store Has the Secret and Gives it to the Readers of the Gettysburg Times.

To properly treat the hair so that it will grow abundantly and luxuriantly, one should first banish dandruff and stop falling hair and itching scalp. This can easily be done with Parian Sage, sold by People's Drug Store with an absolute guarantee to cure dandruff, to stop all falling hair and itching scalp, or money back.

It cures dandruff by killing the germs, and it kills them so promptly that the most skeptical give it praise.

But Parian Sage is more than a cure for dandruff—it will make hair grow on any head where the hair bulb is not altogether dead.

And we want every reader of the Gettysburg Times to know that Parian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world. It is so pleasant to use, and its effect is so invigorating that it causes the hair to become lustrous, fascinating and full of life.

Large bottles only 50 cents at People's Drug Store and druggists everywhere. Girl with the Auburn hair on every package.

Ladies Too Are Helped

There are many ladies who do their own house work; that's commendable, too, but it means rough, red, cracked hands, but not if Manoline is used.

Manoline keeps the skin firm, soft and smooth. It is indispensable to a lady after she once knows the good she can derive from it's uses, and they are many.

Get Manoline today, if you do not have it. Costs 25c instead of One or Two Dollars.

Machine For Scrubbing and Oiling Floors.

In order to provide a more convenient method of scrubbing floors than the back breaking operation that now prevails an inventor has improvised a scrubbing machine which consists of a pair of scrubbing brushes secured to a long handle and supporting a receptacle for water. A valve is provided at one side, which may be operated by the foot to regulate the feed of the water. If desired the brushes may be removed and replaced with rubbing or polishing devices, and the reservoir may be filled with oil if it be desired to oil the floor.—Scientific American.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or,
A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES
KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter,"
"Foes in Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott

We had adjourned to the office. Snaffle had been drinking a bit and got angry and flustered when Riggs crossed examined him. One thing led to another, and finally in exasperation he blurted out: "I'm sick of being called the accused of Mr. Lanier. Why, I've defended him! I've hidden worse things than ever I told you yet, and now I'll stand it no longer! You twit me with spying and slandering. Then by all that's holy you shall say here and now who's the better man! 'Twas Lieutenant Lanier himself that leaped from the window this night a week ago—the back upper window of Sumter's quarters. That's how his hand was cut and torn, and I've got three men that'll swear to it!"

He broke off suddenly, for Kate had turned and flung herself from the room and into the arms of Mrs. Stannard.

"Oh, father, father—it was—it was what I heard—when she screamed—and fell!"

"What did you hear?"

"The other voice—his voice. It said plainly: 'Miriam, hush! Don't you know me?'"

CHAPTER VII.

"BOB," said Mr. Ennis, sauntering in to his comrade's bedside the following morning. "I'm instructed to pay you a kiss." Lanier's bandaged head spun on the pillow. He had but one girl in his mind.

"Wh-who?" he demanded.

Ennis threw his head back and laughed. "Nine times out of ten when a fellow is asked, 'Will you take it now or wait till you get it?' he's wise to take it now. If I'm any judge I should say you'd better wait till you can get it, which may be in less than a week."

"Ennis, if you can quit being an ass long enough to tell me what you mean and where you've been I'll thank you. If you can't I wish you'd get out. Ughash!" concluded Bob, with a lunge into Apache and the pillow.

"Well, it probably isn't just the kiss you were thinking of—no more was I when I got it—bat, Robert, my son and fellow soldier, it's my recorded conviction that the most enviable member of the regiment this day of our Lord is your twin trooper friend Rawdon. I saw him off on his wedding tour, and he didn't have on your clothes."

Lanier's head popped up in an instant, the one visible eye all eager interest. "Where were they married? When did they get off? Was Lowndes there?" were the questions that flew from his lips.

"Arena. On No. 6. Don't know," was the categorical answer. "Rawdon brought the parson out from Omaha, and the Osborns gave her away. Of Lowndes I've seen nothing since the night you staked him at Laramie, and what I've heard of him you refused to listen to. Of that callow specimen of the effete and ultra refined Back Bay district you've long since had my opinion. He's too good and gentle for this western world of ours, Bob, and he and his shuddering kinsfolk suffer too much by contamination."

"Oh, shut up, dad! His people did wire him that his mother was desperately ill. They merely wanted to get him away from the campaign. He'd been gambling, the pesky little fool, with some of the Rawhide crowd, was all out of cash and dared not tell his guardian. That's all there was to it. Son's he gets his money he'll square up—thought perhaps he had, since Rawdon had enough to marry on. Lowndes owed him ten times what he owed me, I reckon."

To them, thus engrossed in confidential chat, there suddenly entered the two doctors. "Black Bill," the inspector, had given notice that he must needs have speech with the culprit, if that bandaged, blistered and unprincipled young man were in condition to see him. "Black Bill" and his host had been having a night of it. Button was in high fettle over the amazingly truthful and unlooked for articles in the Mail and as eager to know and reward their author as he had been to apprehend and punish the earlier defector. Button had begun to "wa-hie," as Bill expressed it, in his spleen against Lanier until so suddenly "braced" by the truculent stand of Captain Snaffle, whose half drunken words the previous night were by this time known all over the post.

The matter was now in the hands of Colonel Riggs, however, and it was his to determine what further action to take. Snaffle had named as his witness Sergeant Fitzroy, Private Kelly (who, though drunk on duty, had not been so drunk, said Snaffle and Fitzroy, that he could not recognize an officer when he saw him, and the third witness, to the amazement of Barker and the derision of Ennis when told of it, was no less a person than poor Tom Rafferty. Lanier's own "striker" and hitherto devoted benchman. And to the consternation of Stannard, Sumter and others Captain Snaffle had been able to back his words. Riggs sent for the two available, Fitzroy and Kelly, and the two had declared they could not be mistaken; that they had heard Miss Arnold's scream, followed instantly by the crash of glass. Fitzroy admitted that he was in the room at the tain Snaffle's back door; said he ran round to the Sumter's gate, that he distinctly saw the figure of a man in a soldier's overcoat and fur cap leaping and sliding down the roof and that a moment later he grappled with it in the dark woodshed, dropping his hold only when angrily ordered to do so, the voice adding instantly, "I'm Lieutenant Lanier." Fitzroy declared that a moment later Rafferty rushed to the spot, recognized the lieutenant and by him was sternly ordered to leave.

And these statements presently did Colonel Riggs lay before Lieutenant Lanier in the presence of Drs. Larrabee and Schuchardt as well as Lieutenant Ennis. "I've known you three years, young sir," said he, "and I've believed in you from the first. I have reminded Sergeant Fitzroy of his previous allegations against Trooper Rawdon as to the scuffle and assault, and, so far from showing confusion, Fitzroy promptly said, 'Certainly; that took place barely half a minute later and within ten yards of the spot.' He says his whole idea first was to drive Rawdon from the scene and prevent his finding his officer in so humiliating a plight. He says he sought in every way to shield the lieutenant, but when all these other facts came out about the cap, the clothing, the lieutenant's absence from his quarters, his lacerated hand, etc., there was no help for it. He finally yielded to the pressure of Captain Snaffle's questions and told the truth. Kelly miserably admitted his knowledge of it, and when Rafferty came to his senses he, too, was to be catechised.

"Now, Mr. Lanier, there's the situation. Do you care to say anything to me, or would you prefer to take counsel?"

And Bob Lanier, leaning on his elbow, looked quietly up in the colonel's bearded face and answered:

"Colonel Riggs, I reckon both those men think they're telling the truth, and I may have to prove they're not."

"Do you mean you were there?"

"I was there, sir. Of course I was there—quick as I could get there, but not quick enough, by any manner of means."

Riggs looked grave indeed.

"You say you may have to prove it was not you. Don't you know you'll have to if these witnesses are further sustained?"

"Fully, sir, and when my need is known there will be witnesses for the defense. The doctors tell me Rafferty may not come round in less than a week. When the time arrives I'll be ready."

That was the condition of affairs when the eighth and final day of Lanier's close arrest arrived. "The idea of Bob Lanier spending Christmas in hospital!" said Mrs. Stannard. A sunshiny room on the ground floor of the major's big house was duly prepared, and thither just before sunset on Christmas eve our young soldier was piloted by Schuchardt and Ennis, making the trip afoot across the rearward space, yet being remanded to a huge easy chair and partial bandages immediately on his arrival.

"Black Bill," with his incomplete report, had gone back to Omaha to further mystify the adjutant general and to eat his Christmas dinner. At 3 p. m. the day before Christmas came a telegram from —, Arnold, Esq., of Standish Bay, Mass., announcing that he would leave forthwith for the west, bringing his sister with him. The Sumters told Mrs. Stannard, and she told Bob Lanier.

It has been said that this young gentleman was an outspoken fellow, with a hit or miss way of saying things when once his mind was made up, and by this time it would seem he had made up his mind.

"Mrs. Stannard, if you think a girl could stand the sight of such a Guy Fawkes as this I would give much to speak ten minutes to Miss Miriam Arnold."

"You're not a Guy Fawkes," said Mrs. Stannard, with fluttering heart. "You've lost something of your mustache and eyebrows, but very little of your good looks, only."

"Only what?"

"Why, it's going to be much harder to see her now than it was before—before she— And Mrs. Stannard faltered.

"Before she saw me playing St. Somebody or other at the back window and screamed? Nobody knows I heard it except you, and you won't tell. Moreover, it isn't about that that I have to speak."

Mrs. Stannard's bonny face showed instant disappointment.

"There's—there's another matter," said Bob, with trouble in his tones. "I so hoped!"—faltered that arch matchmaker.

"So did I, Mrs. Stannard," said downright Bob, "but not with charges hanging over my head. First I've got to meet the enemy."

And yet he wished to see and speak with Miriam, who not once had set foot out of doors since the night of the fire, whose sweet face flamed at every recurring thought of that incident, whose self betrayal covered her with shame and confusion indescribable, who would give years of her young life if she could only escape from Fort Cushing and hide herself a thousand miles away. But not until that stern puritanical father should arrive was leaving to be thought of. A week ago and the tidings of his coming would have filled her with dread. Now she heard them with relief. Father coming, and Aunt Agnes—Aunt Agnes, who never before had been west of the Hudson; Aunt Agnes, whose forbears had warred against witchcraft and woodcraft, against village crones and forest children, against helpless old women and stealthy young savages, all without mercy when delivered into their hands!

THE PROPER COURSE

Information of Priceless Value to Every Gettysburg Citizen.

How to act in an emergency is knowledge of inestimable worth, and this is particularly true of the diseases and ills of the human body. If you suffer with backache, urinary disorders, or any form of kidney trouble, the advice contained in the following statement will add a valuable asset to your store of knowledge. What could be more convincing proof of the efficiency of Doan's Kidney Pills than the statement of Gettysburg citizens who have been permanently cured?

Mrs. Elizabeth Beitler, 1 Steinwehr Ave., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I am just as willing to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills today as I was two years ago, when I publicly told of my experience with them. I was afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble and all my efforts for relief were unavailing. The kidney secretions passed irregularly and caused much distress. Pains often shot across my body and my health was all run down. Hearing so much about Doan's Kidney Pills, I was led to get a box at the People's Drug Store and give them a trial. They cured me and I have since enjoyed good health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

From Dress-Makers' Congress

Black satin is particularly prominent in the new model costumes. Silk chiffons, veilings, marquisesettes, nets and similar diaphanous silk fabrics for wear over satin foundations are largely featured in the new garments. Persian silks are selling well. Black satin duchesse is showing increased activity.
